

About Kymythy Schultze, CCN, AHI

Kymythy Schultze has been a trailblazer in the field of animal nutrition for over a decade. Her professional experience with animals includes being a veterinary assistant for multiple doctors, a trainer, a breeder, a groomer, and a wildlife rehabilitator licensed with the federal government. She has studied many holistic and allopathic modalities, including tutorage with Dr. Richard Dahout, and canine nutrition at Cornell University. She has also hosted a popular radio talk show featuring health and community service issues. Kymythy is a certified Animal Health Instructor and Clinical Nutritionist, and teaches classes in Natural Nutrition and Holistic Care for Dogs and Cats at a southern California college, and through workshops worldwide. Her nutritional recommendations are endorsed by holistic and allopathic veterinarians.

1. She has fed her own cats and dogs a species-appropriate diet of raw foods for many years with proven results. Her Newfoundland dog breeding program has produced American and International champions; titled draft, obedience, and water rescue dogs; and, most important, beloved family companions. She has helped hundreds of people all over the world improve the health of their dogs and cats, naturally. Kymythy is editor of the "Holistic Dog and Cat Newsletter" and author of "Natural Nutrition for Dogs and Cats: The Ultimate Diet".

Kymythy is a Newfoundland Club of America water rescue test judge and has served as president and board member of the Newfoundland Club of San Diego. She has raised Newfies for over 20 years and has lived with cats all her life. She has appeared with her canine and feline companions on many television and radio programs. Kymythy lives in Washington with husband Blair, and various furred and feathered friends.
